Kansas Cattle Men's Convention. Dodge Ciry, Kansas, April 2 .- The econd annual meeting of the western Kansas stock growers' association contown is crowded with people, numbering the most important stock growers from Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico and northern Texas. The questions to come up for discussion will be of national importance, and the action of the convention on the trail question is awaited with interest, as it is thought the united action of an association so large in number and representing so much wealth, will certainly have some weight with our representatives in congress.

The convention was called to order his afternoon by President A. R. Mc-Coy, who delivered a few remarks congratulating the members on the prosperty manifest during the year past, upon the harmonious workings of the asso tion, the general good will and good fellowship existing among the members and the general outlook for the coming year. He called particular attention to the need of more stringent measures for the prevention of burning ranges, both by accident and maliciously; and the need of more effective efforts for the suppression of cattle and calf stealing, and pointed out the great difficulty of con icting thieves. It is estimated those present to-day represent nearly 400,000 cattle.

The Crook Apache Campaign. Washington, April 2. - Information has been received at the headquarters of the army from the United States consul general at Matamoras concerning the Apaches in northern Mexico, which tends to strengthen the belief that Little Charley McComas was killed by his captors. From talks with Apache squaws at Thihuahua recently captured by the Mexicans there can be but little doubt of it. Ju is said to be still alive and with twenty bucks is not over 100 miles north of Chihuahua. It is reported in that country if General Crook had supplies enough in his Mexican campaign to have remained in the mountains a fortnight longer Ju and every Apache in those mountains would have come in. General Crook was compelled to move too soon on account of a large number of squaws and ferred.

POSTMASTERS' SALARIES.

The annual readjustment of salaries of ostmasters for the next fiscal year has begun at the postoffice department. The salaries of 2,405 presidential postmasters will be adjusted on the returns for the quarter ended March 31st. The adjustment will take effect July 1st. The department is about to begin the examina-tion and review of the claims of postmasters for the readjustment of their salaries for the period between the years 1864 and 1874, in accordance with the provision of the act of March 3, 1883. Circular letters are being sent to all persons who were postmasters during that period, or their heirs, calling for information concerning their claims. There are many thousands of these claims, covering periods from one to ten years. The pos tal officials say the enormous sum of $50, 000,000 will be required to pay them.

It has been arranged that on this occasion the Irish leader will deliver a great political address. He will, it is understood, take advantage of the opportunity to nullify the projected alliance of the Ulster tories and liberals against the home-rulers by explaining in detail the uses to which he intends to put the projected campaign fund of £40,000 and by unfolding his new plan for securing sal-aries for Irish members of parliament. At present it is difficult to induce strong men in the home-rule ranks to become parliamentary candidates because most of the greater home-rulers are too poor to accept unsalaried political positions.

BAKER PASHA AND THE WOMEN. The social topic of greatest interest just now appears to be the proposed reinstatement of Baker pasha in the military position which he forfeited some years ago. The Standard, it seems, received no fewer than two hundred letters from ladies recently, urging that the erring officer should be forgiven. Forgiveness being with many women the heroic virtue, this is not very surprising; but have these ladies no fear that in their impulsive generosity they may be helping to break down the barrier which society, none too careful as a rule for femalhonor, has placed about their sex to pro tect them from foulest wrong?

"It was only a momentary impulse, they say, but is that any reason for re-laxing the penalty which tends to keep these momentary impulses in check? Suppose the victim had been less courageous, the yielding to that impulse would have entailed a term of penal servitude, and that too, we suppose, might have been remitted on the same grounds.

"I am mightily amused," writes to us a graceless reprobate, "at the announce-ment in The Standard this morning that the editor has been deluged with letters from hundreds of ladies impetuously demanding the reinstatement of a certain gallant officer in the British army. They are all unanimous, it seems, not one dis-sentient voice among the whole two hundred. Porkopolis After the Rist,

CINCINNATI, April 2.—One of the most ontward signs of the supremacy of order has just appeared in the removal of the barricades in the streets, above the court house at noon. The street cars of the Mt. Auburn line were permitted to pass through after being shut out since 9:30 on Saturday night, when pistol firing and stone throwing in front of the court house so intimidated the drivers and conductors that they refused to further risk their lives. Travel of all kind was at once resumed about the court house. One of of the first lots of freight delivered on North Court street was an immense quantity of bacon to the pork house opposite the court house. Very few soldiers are pacing the sidewalks around the court house for the purpose of preventing venturesome persons from entering that dangerous structure.
